Inspire, Fascinate, and Engage

with Lee Ann Potter

Primary sources in a variety of media have the uncanny ability to inspire, fascinate and engage learners across the age spectrum. In this session, Lee Ann Potter, Director of Educational Outreach at the Library of Congress will share some of her favorite examples and encourage us to explore the Library's vast collections with our students.

About the Speaker: Lee Ann Potter is the Director of Educational Outreach at the Library of Congress, where she leads a dynamic team committed to developing programs and materials that engage learners in building content knowledge, developing critical thinking strategies, and practicing analysis skills—all based on primary sources. Before coming to the Library, Lee Ann created and directed education and volunteer programs at the National Archives and Records Administration for 16 years. Prior to that, she worked at the Smithsonian's Office of Elementary and Secondary Education on a project to build museum-school partnerships, and before that, was a high school social studies teacher in Houston, Texas.
